

INTEREST IN EDUCATION.

We doubt if there is a city in the State that takes the interest in education more heartily than Gainesville, and her citizens to the benefit of the city and State is highly commendable, every citizen doing his share cheerfully to promote the welfare of our schools and taking a pride in their advancement.

When we had the East Florida Seminary in our midst it was the pride of all. There was no discussion—the entire people were proud of it, and they did everything to make a school for the people, where there was no political or denominational bias. It was a high-grade educational institution, with no factions. The people of Gainesville thought they owned it, but it belonged to the State, and when the State abolished it there were many expressions of sorrow to see the dear old place pass into history.

But we have our fine city school building, as fine as any in the State, and on Monday its doors were opened for the education of our young people, and there is a lively interest taken in this institution of learning, which should certainly be the case, for we have a faculty in charge that is equal to any in the State, composed of instructors of experience, who take as much pride in the advancement of our University High School as the most ardent admirer of our city and its educational advancement.

Parents and guardians of children in this and the adjoining counties will find the high school in this city up to the standard of the preparatory schools of the State, where young ladies and gentlemen are fitted for the higher educational institutions or for seeking in the district schools, and where they will have the best of surroundings to be had in any city in Florida.

SUNSTROKES.

A man is not to be judged by the look of his hat—but the look under it. The fall millinery openings are what treat a man's metal—and his paper, also.

An officer is not to be judged by the company he keeps. He is paid for getting into bad company. You can easily distinguish an insurance agent from a barber. The barber does not expect to reap.

The man who sells "clover-fed eggs" has got a lively competitor in the fellow who is peddling "baby beef" from head-fed calves. The University High School boys are talking of organizing a football eleven. We may have some excitement before next spring, after all.

A man wanted to know which was the best plan—to own your city lighting plant and get the benefits, or pay for it every year and let some one else own it. The man who is feeling so bad would experience quite a change if he would take time to chew his victuals, take a twenty-minute rest at noon and sleep at night.

If a man had to pay five cents a line for all the good things said of him in the papers, he would think it outrageous, yet he expects the editor to pay for all the good things he gets.

The detention camp near Pensacola will prove of much assistance to Dr. Fortier in his fight against the yellow fever. The new methods of treating yellow fever have shown a vast advantage over the old way. In one Mississippi town they tried old methods and a near-by city tried the new. In the town that tried the old way they had several hundred cases, while the other only had five.

Umatilla is now shipping some of the choicest grapefruit, which will be a credit to the State.

ANOTHER PENSION SCHEME.

The question of old age pension in the civil service has again come to the fore. There has been formed an organization in the government departments to plead for legislation in this line and the latter meeting has just been held at which the principal address was made by W. E. Andrews, the auditor of the treasury. Mr. Andrews urged that the clerks should combine to form a common pension fund, and said that with the rapid increase of the government service the question of superannuation pensions would force itself on the people in a few years. The men in the employ of the government should draw the same pension that retired workmen draw in the employ of an individual, and not one cent more. Because a man has had a soft job all his life, is no reason he should be pensioned when he is retired.

Lots of men who have been a failure in their business or profession, get places at Washington, and are in reality pensioners during the time they put in four to six hours a day in the government offices, yet they have the nerve to ask for a pension when retired.

Neuralgia And Other Pain.

All pain in any disease is nerve pain, the result of a turbulent condition of the nerves.

The stabbing, lacerating, darting, burning, agonizing pain that comes from the prominent nerve branches, or sensory nerves, is neuralgia, and is the "big brother" of all the other pains.
